Medical Center and Campus Safety Training

Environmental Health & Safety Training

Please review the Required Safety Training for All Campus Staff Working in the Medical Center. Go to the EH&S Training and Outreach to access training information. Upon completion, your compliance will be automatically updated on the university's learning management system. UCLA employees working in healthcare settings are required to complete a medical evaluation, including TB surveillance and vaccinations, with the Occupational Health Services Program.

Bloodborne Pathogens (BBP)

The Bloodborne Pathogens class (both initial and refresher courses) presents the requirements of the California Bloodborne Pathogen Standard, including methods of protecting against exposure. It is required for all employees working with potential exposure to Human blood (whole, components, products). Bloodborne Pathogen training must be renewed annually.

Shipping of Biological Materials

The process of shipping biological materials is highly regulated and requires Shipping of Biological Materials training. Non-compliance can lead to fines and other punitive actions. This training must be renewed every 2 years.

Last updated: 1 Feb 2024

Source URL:https://www.researchgo.ucla.edu/safety-training-med-center-campus

Drupal.jQueryUiFilter.globalOptions('accordion');